

This report is to provide supporting information for those wishing to use or critically analyse the software described within. The task is to build a simple web browser using C,

It is assumed any users will already be familiar with commonly used web browsers such as Google Chrome or Mozilla Firefox, particularly GUI design descisions are based on this assumption.